"Kia Orana", or welcome to the Cook Islands, considered among the most striking islands in the South Pacific's already brimming crown. Each island has its own unique beauty, stories and incredible landscape only matched by the friendliness and grace of its people. Brilliant, sparkling white sandy beaches, clear blue lagoons and fertile rainforests harbouring exceptional wildlife are just a few of the treasures waiting to be discovered.

THE COUNTRY

BlueOrange Studio/Shutterstock.com

The Cook Islands are scattered over 2 million square kilometres and lie right in the middle of the South Pacific. The actual land mass of 241 square kilometres is very small, but what the Cook's lack in size, they make up in brilliance.

Named after the famous Southern explorer Captain Cook, these islands are a treasure trove from their sandy beaches lined with coconut palms to their mountainous interiors covered with dense rainforests harbouring exotic tropical birds. However, it is not just what is on land that entices visitors to these stunning islands.

Unbelievable game fishing lures anglers from around the globe and the diving and snorkelling is world class.

A word of warning though, many who have come for a visit have stayed a lifetime.

DO & SEE

ChameleonsEye/Shutterstock.com

With such a perfect climate and beautiful water it is easy to understand the local saying "Cook Islands people are born of the sea". Here, in fact, most activities are connected to the sea: there are safe places for snorkelling, swimming and diving for all ages and abilities.

Rarotonga's lagoon, around Muri lagoon, Aro'a Beach, Black Rock and Titikaveka are all excellent beaches. The Muri lagoon, in particular, is one of the Cook Islands' most beautiful locations. It is fantastic for swimming, snorkelling, kayaking and windsurfing.

Diving

For divers, the outer reefs surrounding Rarotonga and Aitutaki are remarkable places boasting 30 metres plus year-round visibility.

Some of the best experiences include suggestive canyons, caves, long tunnels, towering drop-offs (some of them up to 4,000 metres), swim-through under and through coral reefs and shipwrecks such as the Alexander.

Hiking

Away from the water's edge there are some fabulous walking tracks and attractions: on

Rarotonga, for example, visit the Highland Paradise and Black Rock, a spiritual place for the islanders. With Pa's Treks Day Tours you can either take the "cross islands trek" where you will cross the island of Rarotonga or "Pa's nature walk (Eco Tour)" which is more gentle and where you will learn about the nature and biology of the plants in an entertaining way.

Caves

On Atiu, have a look at the majestic limestone caves that have also been used for burials!

Remember to take with you a torch, sturdy walking shoes and learn the legend of the lovers Inutoto and Tangaroa and their association with Anatakitaki Cave, which is spectacularly adorned with stalagmites, stalactites and also home to the Kopeka bird. Visit Raka's Cave with its fifteen different chambers and let your guide tell you about the many generations of the Rakanui family who have lived and died in this magnificent hideaway!

Cook Island Christian Church

The Cook Islands Christian Church is a beautiful old white-coral building. Built in 1853, it is worth taking a stroll because of the particularly interesting graveyard. Furthermore in front of the church there is a monument dedicated to the Polynesian missionary Papeiha and Albert Henry, the first prime minister of the independent Cook Islands, is buried here (his grave features a life-size bust of him)!

Sailing

If you prefer to keep your feet dry, then take a glass-bottom or a semi-submersible boat to view the countless tropical fishes and exquisite corals. Windsurfers, sailboats, catamarans and kayaks are also great fun activities. On Rarotonga, the most popular place for sailing activities is Muri Lagoon. Also, there are several hire facilities available on both Rarotonga and Aitutaki offering you all the equipment you may need!

Aitutaki

Aitutaki, to the north of Rarotonga, is the second most popular island to visit and it is easy to see why. The island completely surrounds a breath-taking, crystal-clear turquoise lagoon fringed by pure white beaches which makes it a heaven for divers and snorkelers.

Address: Aitutaki

Atiu

Atiu, in the northeast area, is the third largest island in the group and is well-known to bird watchers and naturalists as a fascinating destination. The Makatea, a central elevated flat-topped mass of volcanic rock surrounded by a raised coral limestone reef is one of its best-known features.

Festivals

Festivals and dancing plays an important part of life for the people of the Cook Islands. For example, the traditional Ura, a Maori sacred ritual is very popular dance here. Visitors who are fortunate enough to be around, are encouraged to join the celebrations and live a priceless experience because of the deep cultural and historical significance.

The Te Maeva Nui celebration, one of the most important and largest festivals held each year around the national day of 4th August, brings all the people from all the islands together to rejoice the nation's self-governance. There are colourful floats, singing, dancing, drumming and feasting.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

janecat/Shutterstock.com

A highlight of the Cook Islands is sipping cocktails at a bar fronting the west as the sun slowly slips below the horizon - there is truly no better way to say farewell to a very special day in paradise.

The later night life of the Cook Islands is steadily growing with Friday night remaining the main night out for both tourists and locals alike. Most bars on Rarotonga remain open till 02:00. Do not expect the same late night on Saturday as the Cook Islanders are a Christian community and usually close all drinking establishments on the stroke of midnight. Furthermore, many of the resorts have their own bars and restaurants at which non-guests are welcome.

Trader Jacks

Traders Jacks is one of the most popular places in the South Pacific, located at Avarua's old harbor. Live music and sounds from the best bands on the islands always attract a lot of people. Friday is usually the big night of the week and that is when you will get a chance to meet both tourists and locals!

Island Nights

Island Nights, which are often included in the weekly entertainment at many resorts, are not to be missed for their mix of a plentiful tantalising local fare. A feast of seafood, meats and vegetables is followed by traditional entertainment where locals adorned in colourful costumes proudly display their authentic Cook Island culture through drumming, singing and dancing. The evening entertainment is usually completed with a Ura Piani (invitation dance), where visitors are given the chance to match the hip shaking of the locals. This is a fun night for all ages!

SHOPPING

ChameleonsEye/Shutterstock.com

One of the best things about shopping in the Cook Islands is the variety of traditional arts and crafts. Passed down over generations, these are much sought over. Basketwork, Rito hats, shell jewellery, carvings and musical instruments head the list. Unfortunately, as with most other countries across the globe, cheap imports do filtrate, so be mindful!

Punanga Nui Cultural Market

Go and wander through the lively Punanga Nui marketplace... If you are looking for quality souvenirs such as pareus (sarongs), t-shirts, island CD music, ukuleles, tivaivai (local quilts), carvings and the most romantic souvenir of them all, the Cook Islands Black Pearl, then this market is not to be missed.

Ara Tapu Road

Along the coastal Ara Tapu Road you will find loads of specialty shops for jewellery including black pearls, handicrafts and local clothing. The Cook Islands colourful stamps are a collector's item and highly sought after by philatelists. The best place to buy stamps and Cook Island coins is the Philatelic Bureau next door to the Post Office. Moreover, if you need diving and snorkelling gear, head to Mana Court in downtown Avarua.

Smaller islands

Putting aside Rarotonga, on all the other islands there is only basic supply... However, each has its own individual crafts and arts which can make each of them an exciting shopping spree! Remember, though, that most shops are closed on Sundays.

A top tip: at Mike Tavioni's sculpture gallery on Atupa, you will often catch this talented man at work whose sculptures are displayed at the Punanga Nui marketplace and National Cultural Centre.

Muri Night Market

Small market in Rarotonga where you will be enchanted not only by the cheerful atmosphere, but also by the mouth-watering local food! This is a great alternative for a night when you don't feel like going to a fancy restaurant, but you still want to enjoy a top quality meal at reasonable prices.

Airport

The Rarotonga International Airport is located on the main island Rarotonga, 4,5 km from Avarua, where most accommodation houses provide transfers from the airport. Raro Tours operate an airport shuttle.

Air Rarotonga operates flights several times a day to Aitutaki and to other islands during the week (the longest trip takes about 4,5 hours, the shortest under an hour). Island passes and island combination packages are a good way to sample a few islands in a convenient way!

Public Transport

The round-the-island bus is a great way of getting around Rarotonga... It operates along the coast road in both directions, originating in Avarua (though you can flag it down anywhere). It is run by Cook's Island Bus Passenger Transport Limited who offer convenient low cost transport.

The bus will pick you up and drop you off anywhere on request, but remember that there is no service on Sunday evenings!
